Autonomous retail · Launching in Tampa

Prepared September 2026 · Vend This LLC

By Elizabeth Barber, Founder

The Concept

Vend This brings Japan's beloved vending machine culture to the United States: high-tech micro markets run by smart vending machines, open 24/7. The first opens in Tampa, Florida, with themed concepts selling Japanese konbini goods, pet essentials, design gifts, beach provisions, beauty, sleep wellness, and travel essentials. A new kind of store, far beyond snacks.

Format

~500 sq ft Tampa storefront. 10 elevator-style smart vending machines with custom vinyl wrapping, cashless, AI-assisted.

Assortment

Distinct concepts: design objects, elevated gifts, wellness tech, niche provisions, and lifestyle products.

Model

High-margin autonomous retail in top foot-traffic markets. The operating record becomes the proof-of-concept for expansion into high-traffic locations.

Goal

A Vend This on or near every college campus in the US and in every high foot-traffic location, with airports as the long-term scale play.

The elevator-style smart vending machine planned for the launch fleet.

Market Opportunity

Tampa is one of America's fastest-growing visitor markets, and every figure below is independently sourced.

Tampa ranks fifth among the 50 largest U.S. metros for growth in population, employment, earnings, and economic activity,¹³ and its newcomers skew wealthy: the metro draws the greatest share of domestic migrants from affluent areas of any major central Florida market.¹⁴ The city is moving upmarket, and Vend This follows that trend.

28M+

visitors to Tampa Bay in 2025, spending $6.0B directly ($9.5B total economic impact)¹

24.8M

passengers through Tampa International Airport in 2025²

1.66M

cruise passengers via Port Tampa Bay in 2025, a port record, tracking 1.8M in 2026³

$26.6B

U.S. convenience-services industry revenue in 2023 (vending ~68%), projected $31.1B in 2025⁵⁶

78%

of U.S. vending sales were cashless in 2025, and cashless buyers spend 59% more per transaction⁷

$124.6B

U.S. + Canada non-alcoholic beverage sales in 2024, up 2.7%, the category our concepts ride⁸

3.42M

people in the Tampa–St. Petersburg–Clearwater metro area (Census estimate, July 2025)¹¹

~2M

visitors to the Tampa Riverwalk each year, per Friends of the Riverwalk¹²

- Home market: City of Tampa population 413,554 (Census estimate, July 2025)⁴; retail asking rent $30.54/sq ft NNN at 6.5% vacancy (Cushman & Wakefield, Q2 2026)¹⁰.
- Category proof: Japan operates 3.88 million vending & automatic-service machines (JVMA, Dec 2025)⁹ doing about $27 billion in annual sales (SoftBank, 2024)¹⁵; the playbook Vend This adapts for the U.S.

Tampa: The Landscape

Tampa is mid-boom, and all of this sits inside about 3 square miles.³⁰ The projects are stitching it into one walkable whole, rare for Florida: compact mixed-use districts of homes, offices, dining, and entertainment, each built so residents can get everything they need close by. Green shading marks the major new developments, each labeled with its published cost and timeline; cream marks established or completed areas. The Riverwalk is the 2.6-mile pedestrian path along the Hillsborough River,¹² now being extended 2 miles up the west bank in a nearly $60M project that will create a 12.2-mile continuous urban path.²² The first Vend This opens in Hyde Park, whose luxury retail corridor, anchored by Hermès, draws a high-spending consumer base that matches the Vend This customer.

The Concepts

The core of the fleet: themed machines, each a curated micro-store built around curated retail. Average tickets and margins below are company catalog data (September 2026), from listed wholesale vs. market prices per product.¹⁶

#	Concept	What's inside	Avg ticket	Avg margin	Gross profit / 100 txns
01	Somniac	Sleep supplements, pillow sprays, wind-down wellness	$43.14	46%	$1,967
02	I Feel Pretty	Skincare, bath, and beauty	$35.93	51%	$1,841
03	Vend Gift	Design gifts, books, candles, curiosities	$32.61	53%	$1,729
04	Sun Provisions	Sunscreen, beach gear, towels, swim essentials	$26.91	52%	$1,392
05	The Layover	Travel essentials, recovery, on-the-go comfort	$34.00	38%	$1,300
06	Sidekick Supply	Dog treats, toys, and pet essentials	$23.19	51%	$1,188
07	Midnight Konbini	Japanese snacks, matcha, teas, confections	$18.59	51%	$943

Plus two food concepts, coming soon. One elevated munchies and one beverage concept, plus one flex machine, complete the ten-machine fleet. It is vending, so the lineup keeps a snacking element, elevated to the same standard. Product selections are still being finalized.

Timeline to Launch

-  Now: September 2026. Brand lock, product catalog, investor materials. Initial concepts finalized; products sourced and costed.
-  October – November 2026. Order machines (6–12 week delivery). Secure Tampa lease; permits filed.
-  December 2026. Buildout, machine install, systems & AI checkout testing, staff-free operations rehearsal.
-  January – February 2027. Launch. Doors open in Tampa.
-  2027 and beyond. Build the operating record that unlocks high foot-traffic locations, including college campuses, with airport concessions as the long-term scale play.

Unit Economics

How a machine makes money

Monthly gross profit per machine = transactions/day × average ticket × 30 days × gross margin. The launch fleet is 10 machines across nine concepts plus one flex machine, and the store's revenue scales on foot traffic and conversion, the two variables the Tampa location is chosen to maximize.

Model complete: per-machine monthly revenue is built bottom-up from actual product costs (wholesale vs. market price per SKU) now that the initial concepts are finalized.¹⁶ See the per-concept table.
